

Where We All Belong – Ballad

By Raffi

(Inspired by the Earth Charter)
Raffi © 2003 Homeland Publishing

In this world full of wonder
This gift of Creation,
Home of all the children here and
Those yet to come.
Seed by seed, in good soil, in good time
Love can grow
For the family of all of life.

In the voice of a thousand tribes we are strong.
In the pulse of the human heart we belong.
Every creature of the sea,
Every flower, every tree,
Every bird, every cloud in the sun.
Every raindrop that falls,
Every turn of the tide
Makes a circle where we all belong.

As we gather in these times,
Come in peace, walk with love
In the chorus of a worldwide song.
As we love and let live,
As we live and let love,
In our soul and our spirit we are free.

In the voice of a thousand tribes we are strong.
In the pulse of the human heart we belong.
Every creature of the sea,
Every flower, every tree,
Every bird, every cloud in the sun.
Every raindrop that falls,
Every turn of the tide
Makes a circle where we all belong.

In this world full of wonder
This gift of Creation,
Home of all the children here and
Those yet to come.